

Bonds Claim Investors' Interest

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The small investor is showing more interest in bonds today than he has in six years. And a lot of government and private institutions aren't too happy about it.

It was six years ago that the U.S. Treasury's "magic 5s" were gobbled up by small-lot buyers, many of whom cashed in other investments or withdrew bank accounts to buy the offering of Treasury notes paying 5 per cent interest. Many small investors called it a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

But this week the Treasury's offering notes paying 5 1/2 per cent and due in just under five years. Banks, savings and loan associations, stock brokers, and doubtless even the Treasury, will be watching closely to see how the public — as differentiated from the big financial institutions — responds.

Small investors rushed in last week in unexpected numbers to buy small lots — $5,000 to $10,000 worth — of a New York City issue of tax-exempt bonds yielding 4 1/2 percent. Such issues of municipal bonds usually sell almost exclusively in big blocks to institutions or very wealthy individuals.

People with common stocks to sell — whether directly or on brokerage commission — aren't too happy about the new trend. It means that many potential stock buyers just aren't interested in the stock market today, where yields, measured in dividends, are usually well below what can be obtained from banks.

The savings and loan associations aren't happy. Some of the money now going into high-yielding bonds might otherwise have been deposited with them. This would have helped ease the shortage of mortgage funds which is bringing howls from home builders and would-be home buyers.

The banks aren't too happy either. They'd rather see the small investor deposit his money with them. They are facing rising demands for loans from business and individuals, and finding it hard to get the funds to meet the demands.

The Treasury has more than $50 billion of Savings Bonds outstanding. They yield 4.15 per cent. Since the Treasury is offering notes yielding 5.25 per cent, it will be watching both the trend of small investors to buy such notes and of Savings Bond holders to redeem some of their holdings.

Other forms of Treasury bonds, the marketable variety, are bringing high yields these days. The 4 per cent bonds due in 1980 are now selling at a price low enough to provide a yield of 4.90 per cent. And the 4 1/2 per cent bonds due in 1987 to 1992 are priced low enough to yield 4.81 per cent.

Body Found Near Ozark Identified

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The director of the Oklahoma Crime Bureau said Monday that a comparison of dental charts left little doubt that a body found near Ozark, Ark., Saturday was that of Kenneth Kienlen.

Kienlen, 19, has been missing from his Del City, Okla., home since July 1 when he left to go to Little Rock to visit a girl friend.

"We're satisfied that the remains are those of the Kienlen boy," said Earl Goerke, Crime Bureau director. "There's not one chance in a million that we're wrong."

Meanwhile, 19-year-old Dennis Byron Sossamon of Grand Prairie, Tex., waived extradition to Arkansas where he was charged with first-degree murder in the case Saturday.

Sossamon, using a pen borrowed from a judge to sign the papers, said he would "rather go to Arkansas" than fight extradition.

The body was found in a heavily wooded area near Sossamon's birthplace.

Arkansas officials were expected to arrive here today and return Sossamon to Van Buren where Prosecutor Jack Yates filed the murder charge.

Judge Clarence Mills told officers, "Tell them (Arkansas officials) he (Sossamon) didn't cause us any trouble and to treat him with the proper kindness."

Goerke said Kienlen's dental chart was compared with an X-ray of the jaw of the body found Saturday. "They were identical," he said.

Several days after Kienlen's disappearance, his abandoned red sports car was found near Checotah in Eastern Oklahoma.

Failure of Strike Move Blasts LBJ

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's venture into the role of copilot for an airlines strike settlement that never got off the runway is being chalked up as a political miss.

The contrast between Johnson's current refusal to give Congress any advice on a legislative solution and his exuberant televised announcement of the proposed settlement Friday night has become a hot topic for cloakroom discussion among members of both parties.

The consensus seems to be that the President, who had remained at arm's length while the negotiations were along, decided only after he had been advised an agreement was possible that it was time to step in personally.

But the machinist union members' rejection of the settlement terms tarnished Johnson's record of being able to knock union and industry heads together and come up with an agreement the public accepted as in its interest.

It seemed that even a can-do President couldn't always prevail, even when the public was being inconvenienced to a point where some members of Congress wanted a national emergency declared.

The airlines strike has been a touchy political affair in which neither the President nor Congress wanted to become involved in an election year.

There is the definite feeling in Congress — and obviously at the White House too — that other big unions are watching the outcome of this dispute to gauge demands for increases in an economy where the cost of living has risen sharply in the last six months.

The administration's anti-inflation guidelines for wage and benefit increases were all but abandoned in the rejected settlement, although the President pointed to increased productivity in the airline industry. If the union now gets an even greater increase, the ceiling for other unions' demands are expected to move up.

This could put every politician on the spot, from the President on down. They would be caught between the organized political might of the unions and an unorganized protest by house-holders against soaring costs of things they buy.

In this situation, Congress members who lean heavily on union support for re-election wish they didn't have to pass any strike-ending legislation. But if they do, they want the President to put it into effect and thus share with them the political onus that labor will attach to the action.

Johnson evidently has other ideas. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, obviously acting under White House instructions, told the Senate Labor Committee Monday the administration was neither advocating nor opposing legislation to end the strike.

The strike already has cost well over $200 million in lost wages and airlines revenues, aside from huge losses to businesses that depend on air travelers.

"The strike is still on," Sie-miller said in announcing the vote tally Sunday.

"It is deplorable that this burdensome strike will continue," said the chief airlines negotiator, William J. Curtin.

"I expect public opinion will demand some action from Congress," Curtin said.

From Johnson, who flew back from a weekend in Camp David, Md., and Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, there was only public silence on the strike situation.

The larger question was whether Congress might use the airlines case as a vehicle to write a stiffer strike-limiting law. Johnson, who made a reference last January to the possibility of some such action to prevent strikes affecting the public interest, is certain to be under increasing pressure now to do something about it.

But a cautioning factor is the strong opposition to any such permanent legislation from the politically potent labor movement.

"We have felt for some time that our negotiations have become a political football," Sie-miller said.

In a related labor dispute, a federal judge in New York Saturday night stopped a threat of Trans World Airlines pilots to walk out even if the machinists returned to work. The dispute was over the pilots' claims for pay during the time the planes were grounded.

Division in U.S. Helps N. Viet Nam

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese war is not only one of the nastiest wars the United States ever got into, but one of the toughest. The talk has been carried a heavy price tag.

President Johnson has been urged to get tough and to back up. The war, or America's role in it, has been denounced and considered necessary.

If you were a North Vietnamese Communist listening to this division of opinion in the United States, it wouldn't be hard to imagine that at best this country could be expected to wage no more than a half-hearted war.

Just how much this divided American opinion induced the Communists to refuse negotiation and to vow to fight 20 years may never be known unless, some time after the war is over, they reveal their thinking in these days.

To add to the confusion, the realists among the Communists could not believe the limited kind of war this country fought, bombing only carefully selected targets, was entirely due to divided thinking here.

They know perfectly well that the United States must consider, among other factors, that recklessness or carelessness in its bombings might incite the Red Chinese into getting into the war, thus starting perhaps a world war.

But if the divided American thinking both baffled and encouraged the North Vietnamese, it must certainly have baffled and discouraged many among the South Vietnamese for whom this country is fighting.

Perhaps Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's decision not to run for the presidency in next year's elections in South Viet Nam is a product of the noise coming from this country.

South Viet Nam has produced very few men who could be honestly called leaders of their people, although Ky gradually is becoming one of them.

In his early days as premier he still looked pretty much the flamboyant air force general, and even impulsive, as when he first sent troops to crush the Buddhist uprising in Da Nang and then hastily backed off.

Later he went ahead and suppressed the Buddhist extremists, thus saving Viet Nam from chaos.

Last week Ky expressed the view that an invasion of North Viet Nam would be necessary to make the North Vietnamese Reds call a halt to their fighting, even though there was danger such a move might bring Red China into the war.

For this Ky was promptly denounced in this country in Congress. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield urged that the United States dissociate itself from Ky's remarks. Other senators joined in the attack on Ky.

And 47 members of the House, 44 Democrats and 3 Republicans, wanted the Johnson administration to dissociate itself from the "spirit of escalation."

But the State Department wouldn't go any further than saying that the United States doesn't want to seek "any wider war."

By the end of the week Ky was talking of not running for president but of wanting to go back into the air force. Yet, before the war is over, the United States may wish he had run for president.

Union Tie Given Pryor by Arnold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The 4th District Congressional race generated a little heat Monday with Richard Arnold charging that his opponent, David Pryor, is under "domination and control by union bosses."

Arnold made the charge in a television address carried by stations at El Dorado, Texarkana and Pine Bluff-Little Rock.

Earlier Monday, Pryor issued a statement saying that Arnold was launching a smear campaign against him.

Pryor said he had information that Arnold "is planning to employ these desperation tactics in an attempt to gain votes at all costs."

The two collide Aug. 9 in the Democratic runoff to see which will face Republican Lynn Lowe of Texarkana in the November general election.

Pryor led the ticket in last Tuesday's preferential primary with more than 40,000 votes. Arnold polled around 25,000 votes.

Pryor has received the endorsement of the third place man, Dean Murphy of Texarkana. Neither of the other two in the field, Charles Honey of Prescott and John Harris Jones of Pine Bluff, have announced who, if either, they will endorse.

Honey said Monday that he does not plan to endorse either. He said he wished both candidates well in the runoff, "but I feel it would be presumptuous on my part to publicly endorse either candidate."

In his television address, Arnold referred to Pryor's voting record in the state legislature, where Pryor served six years. Arnold said, "Pryor voted 100 per cent for union labor demands, 100 per cent for the wishes of union bosses outside the 4th District and even outside the state of Arkansas."

"This record is evidence of domination and control by union bosses instead of freedom and independence," Arnold said. "If you want the Teamsters Union to have a congressman from the 4th District, if you want another rubber stamp for Walter Reuther and Jimmy Hoffa in Washington, D.C., then vote for David Pryor."

Arnold said he supported the working man but is "opposed to union bossism that seeks to dictate to union members and to congressmen alike."

Arnold said he favored a reasonable extension and increase in the minimum wage. Arnold also charged that Pryor had been able to pass only two bills in his six years in the state House. Arnold said that a total of 1,500 bills passed during that time.

He said that Pryor had opposed, among others, these measures: increased aid for cities, improved State Police facilities, proposed vocational training school, improvements to the state Girls Training School and a refund of tax on motor fuel for farmers.

5th of Gas Pumps Fail State Test

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Plant Board reported Monday that its inspectors had rejected 21 per cent of 2,098 service station fuel pumps inspected during July.

A Plant Board spokesman said 144 of the rejected pumps shortchanged fuel buyers, 80 pumps gave an excess amount of fuel and 326 pumps were rejected because they lacked proper equipment.

'Careers' Speaker at Rotary

Porter Briggs, Executive Director of Arkansas Careers, Inc., an organization with headquarters in Little Rock, spoke to the Hope Rotary Club last Friday about the group he directs and how it is making "Arkansas — Land of Opportunity" a fact and not merely a slogan. One of its chief methods of contacting college students for the past four years is through Arkansas Career Days, held on various campuses throughout the state.

The speaker showed enthusiasm for his subject and requested the names of college students, servicemen, or others interested in beginning a career in Arkansas, for Arkansas Careers, Inc., is interested in them.

President Paul Klipsch had charge of a business meeting and appointed several committee chairman. He, then, introduced the guest speaker whose appearance was arranged by program chairman Bob Willhite.

Club guests for the luncheon meeting at the Town and Country were Gordon Kling of Crystal Lake, Ill., James House and John Lester.

WEDDING VOWS EXCHANGED

Miss Marcella Kubelka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Kubelka of Ennis, Texas, and William J. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Anderson of Hope were married Sunday, July 30 at 2 p.m. at St John's Catholic Church in Ennis. Right Reverend Monsignor James I. Tuck officiated.

The bride given in marriage by her father chose a gown of white chantilly lace over imported illusion and pear de sole sprinkled with crystal and seed pearls. The mould bodice was designed with a sabrina neckline. A full chapel train of illusion fell from the waistline of the skirt accented by a narrow band of satin ribbon. Appliques of lace with clusters of crystal and seed pearls were sprinkled over the entire train.

Her long veil of matching illusion covered the entire train and was held by a pear de sole pill box, topped with a matching bow and trimmed with pearls.

The bride's matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Ronald Patterson of Corpus Christi, Texas. The groom's best man was Mr. George Anderson, his brother, of Garland.

The attendants and escorts were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Zmolek, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shackleford and Miss Lorene Trojacek and Mr. Robert Kubelka all of Ennis. Also Mrs. George Anderson of Garland and Mr. Ronald Patterson of Corpus Christi were in the wedding party.

The bride and groom are honeymooning in Acapulco and Mexico City, after which they will reside at 4122 Burning Tree Lane, in Garland, Texas.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This may be vacation-time for most of the nation, but not at the film studios, where next season's products are rolling down the assembly lines.

Only a few years ago many of the larger studios, MGM among them, were ignoring television in the belief that it would go away.

At the moment there are 80 television programs being created in this film capital.

Although the trade paper, the Hollywood Reporter, notes that there are 62 motion picture features currently before the cameras, only 20 of them are being filmed here. The rest are being shot in Spain, Hong Kong, England, France, Italy and New York.

Little sister television has become the largest consumer of Hollywood talent — so big, in fact, that there is a shortage of space and equipment to handle all the activity.

All studios are reporting peak production. MGM has five motion pictures and seven television series in production and is using all 30 of its sound stages and its three back lots.

This reporter, fresh off a plane from New York and a month's vacation, will spend the next few weeks looking over the new television product, visiting the studios and sets and talking to the writers, producers, directors and stars.

A couple of seasons back ABC inaugurated the system of launching the new season in seven days starting the Monday after Labor Day. NBC and CBS followed suit, with the result that last fall viewers were confronted in seven days with an enormous smorgasbord of television fare but were able to sample only a portion.

The system failed to please the audience and it was not very satisfactory to the networks because they had to wait for weeks to learn if they had hits or misses.

This year was expected to be the same scuffle with all networks launching their new shows and returning series in one hectic week starting Sept. 12.

However, at the end of July, ABC suddenly announced it would have "advance premieres" of 12 of its 16 new programs a week earlier — starting the day after Labor Day.

The move obviously will give new ABC shows exposure to viewers while the two rival networks are still showing reruns. At this writing, neither NBC nor CBS have pushed up their opening dates.

Getting there first is considered to be a big advantage, so presumably there will be counter-moves. But there is no place to go but into the pre-Labor Day period when audiences are down and interest in television is at a low point.

'Advance Men' Much in Demand

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House aides, suspecting President Johnson's campaign travels this fall will be extensive, are beginning to worry about finding advance men to make appropriate arrangements.

No campaign tour is complete without the advance man — the fellow who goes out ahead of, hopefully, smooth out all preparations and drum up a crowd.

In many ways, it's like the old-time traveling circus.

Good advance men are in short supply at the White House right now. For that reason, press secretary Bill D. Moyers has persuaded Tom Johnson, an assistant enlisted to work in the press office for only one year, to stay on the job at least through November. He had been scheduled to depart Aug. 15.

Johnson — he is "Tom" to the President and the White House staff — is still in his 20's. He is one of two tested advance men on the White House staff. He was the man, for example, who made the advance arrangements — outside the security and communications fields — for the President's July 23 foray into Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

That trip went smoothly. Crowds were on hand at each stop. There were plenty of welcoming banners. And, in Indianapolis at least, the streets were littered with Democratic campaign literature after the chief executive's departure.

In an off-year election, the White House advance man presumably doesn't have to worry about distribution of campaign fliers. But nearly everything else, with the exception of security and communications, comes within his province.

President Johnson — no kin to advance man Johnson, who is from Macon, Ga. — likes to be greeted by plenty of homemade placards. He even has been known to suggest the exact lettering to be placed on these spontaneous outcroppings of hospitality.

The advance man, working with Secret Service agents, must work out the President's exact route and schedule. He even must make certain enough bands are on hand — and that they learn either "Hello Lyn-don" or "Hail to the Chief."

President Johnson's associates are saying that, for the foreseeable future, he probably will confine his travels to week-end expeditions such as last month's trip to the midlands.

But the fact that Tom Johnson isn't going home to Macon—at least right now—is one sign they're hedging these bets.

ON TEEN MARRIAGES

Dear Helen: I am 16, and getting a divorce. The boy I married was so mean I couldn't live with him. The first week, he beat me because his mother told him that was how to keep a wife in place — smack her around.

I soon found out he does everything Mama says, and now that I have filed for divorce it could almost be worse for me. They are spreading all kinds of bad stories around: I'm lazy; I "stepped out" on him; I'm mean tempered; every lie they can think of. My husband told me when I left he and Mama would see to it no one else would want me. Every time his mother meets me on the street she calls me dirty names so everyone will hear.

I don't care about dates: The way I feel now, I'm through with men, but I want to go back to school this fall and I don't think I can face people, knowing what is being said about me.

My grandmother wants me to come and stay with her in another state, but I hate to leave my family — and it would look like I was really what they say and just running away. What should I do? — R. G.

Dear R: Sometimes walking away from trouble is the best way to live it down. You'll have a better chance at a new life if you choose for your grandmother's home in another state. However, sticking it out won't be as hard as you think: vindictive people wear their meanness on the outside where others can recognize it. You'll find more sympathy than blame in your hometown, either way you go. — H.

Dear Helen: My sister got married at 15 and has had a terrible time.

They live with her husband's folks. He won't let her call her parents or see her friends. He is afraid to let her out of his sight, though she is very trustworthy. He's even suspicious of his Dad and brother and he won't let her see my father because he is a man.

Dodgers Win Clutch Tilt From Pirates

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

It's been a most productive week for Phil Regan, who used to worry about his share in baseball's pension plan and now thinks about a World Series share instead.

Regan won his third game in six days Monday night when Los Angeles rallied for four runs in the ninth inning on homers by John Roseboro and Jim Gilliam and defeated Pittsburgh 5-1.

The victory kept the Dodgers in first place in the National League, three percentage points in front of San Francisco and a full game up on the Pirates, who lost their fourth straight.

It raised Regan's season's record to 10-1. The veteran right-hander, who virtually dealt himself to the Dodgers last fall, has saved nine games and has an earned run average of 1.52, best on the pitching-rich Los Angeles staff.

A year ago Regan was toiling with Detroit's International League farm team at Syracuse, hoping to pitch his way back into the majors. He needed just 14 more days on a major league roster to qualify for the pension plan.

"I was really disappointed," Regan recalled. "I thought seriously of going home. But I remembered I only needed 14 days to complete five years, so I reported to Syracuse."

It was while pitching there that Regan learned the Dodgers were interested in him. "I called Jim Campbell (Detroit's general manager) and asked to be traded."

The deal was made last November, just 30 minutes before the inter-league deadline, with the Dodgers swapping utility infielder Dick Tracewski for Regan.

It wasn't the biggest bargain ever. The Indians got only $24 for Manhattan Island.

Elsewhere, San Francisco kept pace with the Dodgers by downing New York 4-2, Philadelphia edged Houston 6-5 in 10 innings and Cincinnati topped St. Louis 3-2.

In the American League, Minnesota rapped Boston 6-2, Washington downed Kansas City 6-4 and California nipped New York 4-3.

Pirate starter Tommy Sisk protected a 1-0 lead against Sandy Koufax for seven innings but the Dodgers tied it in the eighth. Gilliam, pinch hitting, walked, and came around on singles by Jim Barberi and Maury Wills.

Dick Stuart opened the Dodgers ninth with a walk and then Roseboro connected, snapping the tie. After Jim Lefebvre singled, Gilliam gave Regan the extra cushion with his first homer of the year.

Bob Priddy worked eight innings of scoreless relief as the Giants bounced back to defeat the pesky Mets.

Priddy allowed just two hits and worked his way out of a bases-loaded non-out jam after the Mets had nicked Joe Gibbon for two runs in the second.

The Giants bunched six hits for three runs in the fourth and moved past the Pirates into second place.

Rich Allen led off the 10th inning with an inside-the-park homer that gave the Phillies their victory over the Astros. Houston's Jim Wynn crashed into the center field wall trying for the catch and was carried off the field on a stretcher. He suffered a dislocated left elbow.

Johnny Callison walloped a pair of homers and Clay Dalrymple drove in three runs for the Phillies. Wynn homered for the Astros and Bob Aspromonte tied the game with a three-run clout in the ninth inning.

Cincinnati won its 12th game in the last 13 by whipping the Cardinals with four pitchers limiting St. Louis to four hits. Gordy Coleman homered for the winners.

Atlanta Pro Gridders to Aim High

By RON SPEER

Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons came through their National Football League initiation confident they won't be everybody's patsy this fall.

"We'll whip somebody, you can count on that," Coach Norb Hecker promised Monday night after the Falcons turned back every touchdown threat but were beaten 9-7 by the Philadelphia Eagles on three field goals in the opening exhibition game of the season.

"Our defense played a helluva game," Hecker said. "It's a shame to hold a team without a touchdown and still lose."

Sam Baker booted field goals of 28, 24 and 25 yards for enough points to keep Philadelphia from becoming the first team ever to lose to the Falcons, who sparked on defense in their Coach Joe Kuharich of the Eagles agreed that the Falcons put up a stiff fight.

"They aren't pushovers," Kuharich said. "They've got veterans — and most of them are pretty good — at every position."

The two standouts for the Falcons, however, had seen only limited pro action before being acquired by Atlanta when it started to build its team last winter.

Ron Smith, defensive halfback for the Falcons, was with the Bears last fall but was used only as a spot player. Dennis Claridge, Atlanta quarterback, had been used on only three plays in two seasons with Green Bay.

Claridge completed 10 of 16 passes, including a one-yard touchdown toss just before the half to Tom Wilson, which gave the Falcons a 7-6 lead.

The touchdown was set up by a pass interception by Smith, who earlier snuffed a Philadelphia threat with another interception. Smith also gave the Falcons a final chance at victory when he returned a punt 42 yards with a minute left.

Likes Pros Against the All-Stars

The AFL opens its exhibition schedule tonight in Houston with the Oilers meeting the Oakland Raiders. Each has a new coach, Wally Lemm at Houston replacing Bones Taylor, and Johnny Rauch at Oakland replacing Al Davis.

Player squabbles, holdouts, walk outs and non-appearances continued to dominate the training camp news, however.

Fullback Cookie Gilchrist of the Denver Broncos said he was quitting the American Football League "with deep regrets" because he doesn't like the management.

The executive vice president of the club, Jim Burris, said he was "not unduly surprised or concerned."

The two exchanged unpleasanties via newsmen to climax a 10-day absence of the 31-year-old Gilchrist from the Bronco training camp where he was supposed to report July 23. He's been accumulating a $100-a-day fine since then for not showing up.

Gilchrist's 250-word statement, however, did not say flatly he was going to quit pro ball after 12 years but he refused to say if he would play for another team if the Broncos traded him.

End Art Powell and halfback Clem Daniels walked out of the Raiders' Santa Rosa, Calif., training camp after failing to come to contract terms and the Raiders issued a statement saying they "contemplate playing the 1966 season without Daniels and Powell."

In Honolulu, 49er quarterback John Brodie said he is ready to end his holdout, return to the mainland and sign his contract. Veteran guard Ted Karris showed up in the Detroit Lions' training camp Monday, but couldn't come to terms.

Junkins Wins District Play Opener 3-1

In the first game of the Little League Tournament Monday night Junkins Lumber Co. of Texarkana defeated the DeQueen Lions by a score of 3 to 1.

Propps was the winning pitcher and Bell the loser. Propps gave up only 7 hits and struck out 11 batters. Bell gave up 3 hits and struck out 8. For DeQueen, Russell and Halter had two hits. Whatley, Neely, and Henderson each had a hit for Junkins Lumber.

In the second game, College Hill of Texarkana defeated Nashville 7 to 0. Freeman was the winning pitcher and Bennett the loser. College Hill had 4 hits for the night and Nashville 3. Freeman had 2 of the 4 hits for College Hill. Dyer, Walston, and Brown each had a hit for Nashville.

In the final game of the night, Collins & Williams of Texarkana defeated Horatio by a score of 6 to 5. Gentry was the winning pitcher and Munn the loser. Collins & Williams of Texarkana had 5 hits and Horatio had 7. Phillips had a triple and a single for Collins & Williams. Adcock and Phillips each had a double for Horatio.

Play resumes tonight with three games scheduled for tonight. Game time is 5 o'clock.

Eagles Not Good on Defense

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Timmy Brown is Mr. Big of the Philadelphia Eagles, a team with a solid scoring punch but a flabby defense.

While the Eagles were scoring 363 points last season and equalling Cleveland's production, the defense was busy giving away 359 points. Consequently, the final won-loss record was 5-9 and a fifth-place tie in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League.

Aware of his need, Coach Joe Kuharich drafted and signed a pair of defensive ends — Randy Beisler of Indiana and Gary Pettigrew of Stanford — as his first two picks. Unfortunately for the Eagles, Beisler has been busy with the College All-Star squad at Chicago.

Kuharich, starting the third year of his 15-year contract as coach and general manager, is optimistic about the outlook.

"With Jim Brown out, our division is a vast unknown," said Kuharich. "We have as good a chance as any if we can improve on last year."

"Our defense is not as weak as people think. Last year, we didn't get enough pressure from our front four and we did not get good linebacking. Maxie Baughan (traded to Los Angeles) and Mike Morgan were in and out. We would stop a team on first and 10, second and 10 and then give up the first down. With our new men, I think we have a chance for more unity and consistency."

Kuharich traded away two of his defensive regulars after last season. Baughan, a veteran linebacker, and Irv Cross, a top-flight defensive back, were shipped to the Rams. Claude Crabb, another defensive back, also went to the Rams.

In return for Baughan and Cross, the Eagles got defensive back Aaron Martin, flanker Willie Brown, linebacker Fred Brown and defensive tackle Frank Molden from the Rams. Kuharich likes all four.

Molden, 6-foot-5, 285, originally was a Pittsburgh Steeler. Brown may force Morgan from the left linebacker job and Martin has fitted into the picture as a regular corner back.

The Eagles' offense came alive last year and ranked second among the 14 clubs in the NFL. Despite an injured right knee that necessitated an operation in January, Norm Snead threw 15 touchdown passes and gained 2,346 yards. He is healthy now, backed by King Hill and Jack Concanon.

Timmy Brown, who will crack the 10,000-yard club in total yardage this season, led the Eagles in rushing with 861 yards and also caught 50 passes for 682 yards.

Pete Retzlaff, veteran all-league tight end who caught 66 passes for 1,190 yards and 10 TDs last year, is back and ready for his 11th season. Split end Ray Poage and flanker Ron Goodwin are the other top receivers, although Snead throws a great deal to Brown and fullback Earl Gros. Willie Brown, used as flanker and running back at Los Angeles, should help. Ben Hawkins, No. 3 draft

Otto Graham With 'Skins' Definitely

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — When Otto Graham moved to Washington to tackle his first pro coaching job, he told people, "Don't bother to make any 'Goodbye, Otto' signs because I am going to be around for a while."

The former quarterback great of the Cleveland Browns was not kidding. He is here to stay, perhaps for 10 years, under the terms of a lucrative contract arranged by Edward Bennett Williams, the famous lawyer who runs the National Football League club.

"A year ago this was the furthest thing from my mind," said Graham, who gave up a job as coach at the Coast Guard Academy to take over at Washington. "But football is football, no matter where you go. The fundamentals still are blocking and spirit."

Otto found pro football changed since his days under Coach Paul Brown of the Browns. "They shoot the line-backers more now," he said. "We never had safety red dogs. The offenses have changed, too. When Marion Motley was a fullback, we used him more for screens and traps. Now a fullback is just another running back. He goes out on pass patterns and does not have to do so much blocking."

Graham realizes he is facing a tough job, transforming a 6-3 club into a contender. The Redskins have not played .500 ball since 1956.

Graham said he expected to let his quarterback, Sonny Jurgensen, call most of the plays. In his days at Cleveland, he sometimes complained that Coach Brown sent in too many. With Jurgensen and young Dick Shiner to back him up, Graham should have enough quarterbacking. However, he is in dire need of more running backs. He is very thin back of Charley Taylor and George Hughley, although he had hopes for rookie Tom Barrington of Ohio State.

Taylor was a disappointment last year after a fine rookie season. He suffered a broken ankle in a preseason game in 1965 and never regained his 1964 form. Hughley, picked up from the Canadian League, did a fine job at fullback. Pres Carpenter, veteran tight end, even got a look at running back.

Bobby Mitchell at flanker, delighted with his new end coach, Ray Renfro, is the Redskins' best receiver. Pat Richter and Jerry Smith are the other starters with Jim Snowden, a regular offensive tackle as a rookie, taking a shot at right end.

Len Hauss at center and Vince Promuto and Darrell Deils or Don Croftcheck are solid at guards. Fran O'Brien is the left tackle but the right tackle is open if Snowden stays at end. John McDowell, acquired from New York, may win the job.

The contract troubles of John Paluck, which resulted in an announcement he would retire, left a gap at defensive left end. Paluck probably will be traded to some other club eventually. Carl Kammerer is the other end but tackle Ron Snidow may be moved to Paluck's old job, while Rookie Walt Barnes, in the College All-Star camp, or the veteran Fred Williams would team with Joe Rutgens at tackle in such a case. Rookie Dick LeMay at the All-Star camp is another possibility.

Linebacking is thin with the retirement of Jim Carr and Bob Pellegrini. Sam Huff is back in the middle and John Reger has decided to come out of retirement to play a corner position. Chris Hanburger will be the other regular. Willie Adams also is available and Croftcheck has been working at linebacker.

Washington's big rookie is Charlie Gogolak of Princeton, the soccer-style place kicker who broke all the NCAA records last year. He has been shuttling between the Skins and the All-Star camp.

Newcomer to Travelers California Beats Yanks 1-0 Score

By MURRAY CHASS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Jay Johnstone has played only three major league games, but already he's displayed two things he learned in the minors — how to hit and how not to be helpful.

Johnstone, called up by California last Friday night to fill in for Rick Reichardt, stroked three hits and drove in the winning run Monday night as the Angels edged the New York Yankees 4-3.

The 20-year-old Johnstone joined the Angels Saturday after hitting .338 for Seattle of the Pacific Coast League. He was promoted after the Angels learned that Reichardt, their leading slugger, had kidney trouble and might be lost for the rest of the season.

In three games, the left-handed hitter has collected six hits in 12 at-bats, including five hits in his last six trips to the plate.

But shortly before coming to the Angels, the center fielder learned why he shouldn't be helpful.

He was batting in a game against Portland July 4 when he hit a foul which bounced up beside him. Trying to be helpful, he caught the ball and held it out for the umpire to take.

Instead of putting his hand out for the ball, though, the umpire put his arm in the air and signaled Johnstone out for interference.

So the Yankees couldn't have expected the rookie to do anything that would help them when he came to bat in the seventh inning with the bases loaded and the game tied 3-3.

He had already beaten out two infield hits, and this time he drilled a single to center, drilled a single to center, drilled a single to center, drilled a single to center, drilled a single to center.

Carl Kammerer is the other end but tackle Ron Snidow may be moved to Paluck's old job, while Rookie Walt Barnes, in the College All-Star camp, or the veteran Fred Williams would team with Joe Rutgens at tackle in such a case. Rookie Dick LeMay at the All-Star camp is another possibility.

Hank Gowdy, Baseball's Great, Dies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hank Gowdy, old-time National League catcher celebrated for his batting feats in baseball's 1914 World Series, an untimely tumble in the 1924 Series, and as the first major leaguer to volunteer for World War I service, is dead at age 76.

The gangling fellow who hit .545 for the Miracle Boston Braves in the 1914 classic succumbed to a long illness after two weeks hospitalization here in his home city.

Gowdy banded a home run — the only one of the Series — a triple, three doubles and a single in 11 times at bat in the '14 Series.

He went into the set with Connie Mack's heavily favored Philadelphia Athletics after, in his first season as a regular, helping Manager George Stallings' Braves come from eighth place July 4 to win the National League pennant.

Boston swept the A's in four games.

He was born Harry Gowdy and his dad, Horace (Pop) Gowdy, wanted him to get into something with a future.

As it developed, Gowdy lasted 10 seasons with the Braves and didn't wind up his major league playing days until 1930 when again with the Braves he bowed out with a 4-for-5 day against Cincinnati.

In that memorable 1914 season, Gowdy caught 128 games and hit .243 in the regular season before breaking out in the World Series.

Ironically, his biggest heart-break came just 10 years later, in the 1924 classic with the Giants against Washington.

In the 12th inning of the seventh and deciding game, Muddy Ruel popped up what appeared a routine inning-ending foul.

But Hank's foot became entangled with his discarded mask as he went after the ball, and he couldn't hold it.

Ruel then doubled and came home with the Series-deciding run as an infield roller took an unexpected jump over third baseman Freddie Lindstrom's head.

The Johnson-Nugent
Wedding
Report

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When Luci Johnson sets up housekeeping in a rented duplex in Austin, after her August honeymoon with Patrick J. Nugent, she will be backed up by more friendly cooking advice than most beginners in marriage ever get.

Something like 125 recipes have come to Luci from personal friends, some of the President's and Mrs. Johnson's friends, members of the press who covered her activities during her White House years.

She has the idea people think she badly needs these suggestions, since somehow or other the word has gone around that her cooking efforts are limited to brownies and fried chicken. But she insists:

"I am really rather versatile. I can cook steaks and stews and casseroles."

However that may be, when the brick duplex in Austin is open for business, Luci can draw on a fat file of wildly varied cooking notions.

Many were handed to her in June by friends who came to a kitchen shower. Some of these women brought the particular utensils needed for their recipes. A July press party given by Luci and her mother yielded another small deluge.

Luci's taste for peanut butter concoctions produced several fees in that sticky field. Perhaps the most ingenious came from Dr. Janet Travell, former White House physician.

Labeled "peanut butter whip, a low-cost nutritional supplement," the doctor's recipe claims to be a weapon to fight (waistline) inflation. The ingredients are simple enough: ordinary peanut butter into which warm tap water is pressed with a fork, "until it forms a smooth emulsion, suddenly."

The word "smooth" is the key. Confidently, Dr. Travell tells Luci "it won't stick to the roof of your mouth." That should get an early test in Austin.

The recipes reflected a fair amount of good-natured foolishness. One woman, assuming Luci and Pat must have voracious appetites, suggested they go to the nearest ice cream emporium and pick up three gallons of something called Butter Brickle.

"Serves two," said the woman with a twinkle.

"Luci Baines Johnson Nugent's Cookbook" may turn out to be the envy of cookbook publishers. Some sample entries:

Raspberry mousse, cherry cream cheese pie, "pink fancy," French chocolate silk pie, daffodil cake, Spanish cream, "bananas Foster," curried fruit bake, original Scotch shortcake, cheese dreams.

In the nondessert department, the list includes such fairly exotic proposals as "squaw dish," California casserole, Mardi Gras casserole, cheese rice, chicken imperial, candied tomatoes, lemon onion soup, shrimp creole and crab mold.

Even in cookery, politics rears its head. Tucked away in the file is something called "Great Society rolls." The recipe contained no stunning surprises.

Next autumn it may be a good while before Luci tries some of these dazzling items. She made it plain to reporters she intends to give Texas food prices a hard look "to see what we can afford."

Aside from the highly practical kitchenware and other household things Luci has been presented with at a long series of showers, she has accepted many useful gifts of only nominal value from perfect strangers eager to show their friendliness.

Potholders seem to be a big favorite in 1966. Luci already has at least half a dozen. Somebody sent in a hand-painted cake tray. Sets of coasters have turned up.

The White House decided at the outset it was all right to accept things of this sort. There are other things for the house: hand-tatted pillow cases, little doilies and other hand-made items.

Luci also accepts personal gifts of limited value. The most numerous are handkerchiefs (the total is past 50), and a variety of religious objects, mostly medals and rosaries.

If the offered gifts strike Luci as having any special, personal value to the giver, she has invariably suggested that they keep them at home or give them to a charity hospital in her name. One woman wanted to give her a three-foot statue she obviously cherished. Luci graciously turned it down.

As the wedding date nears, the gifts from personal friends are pouring in. But, in keeping with Luci's notion that this be a personal wedding as possible in a White House setting,

Here Comes the Bride

MAIN ALTAR of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — At 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 6, Luci Baines Johnson and her father, the President of the United States, will step out of the White House and into a waiting limousine. Off they will go to a great church standing on a hill in the capital's northeast sector.

Thus will begin a ceremony that has happened only six previous times in American history: the wedding of a daughter of a president. At 10, Luci is marrying Patrick J. Nugent of Waukegan, Ill., 23, whom she met in June, 1965.

Sharply at noon, Lynda Bird Johnson, her sister and maid of honor, will begin the wedding procession down the broad aisle of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, the largest Catholic church in the nation and the seventh largest church in the world.

No wedding has ever been held before in its huge main chapel. Luci wanted hers there because she and Pat love the church. She attended its services often even before she was converted to Catholicism on her 18th birthday last year.

On her father's arm, it will take the bride 12 minutes to walk at measured pace the 352 feet from the church door to the 46-foot-high marble-canopied altar.

As she and Pat kneel for a solid hour during the hour-and-a-half Solemn High Mass, they will see ahead of them — on the Shrine's north apse wall — a gleaming gold and red mosaic depicting Christ as Lord of the Universe.

The historic services that day will be performed by the Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of the Archdiocese of Washington, the president of the National Shrine, and the Rev. John Kuzniskas, a close friend of Pat Nugent's family since his boyhood.

The public's eye will not fall upon this ceremony. Luci wanted it as intimate and personal as possible in the inevitable public circumstances which surround it. There will be no television cameras within the church. Just a handful of reporters will be discreetly spotted among the church guests. Only one will be so placed as to have a face-on view of the wedding couple.

Probably not many more than 600 friends of the Johnsons and the Nugents will occupy the polished wooden pews of a church which normally can hold 2,000. Palms and other greenery will carefully screen off the unused areas.

Somewhere around 12:30 p.m., the service will be sufficiently advanced to permit a White House emissary to slip quietly out of the church and announce to hundreds of waiting reporters the words: "They're married!" Quickly these words will be relayed around the world.

At about 1:30, Luci and Pat, the President and Mrs. Johnson, Pat's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard P. Nugent, and the rest of the wedding party of 24 will emerge from the Shrine and drive to the White House for an afternoon reception.

All of the church guests are free to follow, since all invitations covered both the church service and the reception. Said Mrs. Johnson: "It offends my sense of hospitality to ask people to the church and not to the house."

Back at the White House, butlers will have been bustling about for hours to prepare for the year's greatest social event. The reception will embrace the whole ceremonial area of the White House, flowing from the famous East Room through smaller rooms like the Red and the Blue to the great state dining room on the western side.

Says a family friend:

"It will be just like any other reception you've ever known. There will be a receiving line, punch, the cake-cutting, and dancing. Luci will dance with her father."

Actually, that understates it a little. Anyone who has ever attended any sort of major social affair at the White House knows that an indefinable but rich air of elegance enhances such events. The reception for Luci and Pat is sure to be like no other.

A Marine band will be on hand, playing background music. Later, Peter Duchin's orchestra will take over. Luci's father can be counted on to take many turns on the dance floor, as he does at most events.

To most people a guest list in the range of 600 sounds big, but White House aides insist it is not. Nearly half the invitations went to friends of the Nugents. To hold a presidential list to 250 or 300 requires high restraint on the selectivity.

After Luci's personal friends, the President and Mrs. Johnson tried to choose friends of their own who had some connection or other with Luci. Beyond that, the choosing was mostly of people in and around government whom the Johnsons have come to know in their nearly 35 years of residence in Washington.

With the guest list so limited, there could be no blanket invitation to members of Congress, heads of government agencies, leaders of the diplomatic corps. In fact, to assuage the feelings of the diplomats, Roving Ambassador Averell Harriman arranged a party to permit them to meet Luci and Pat at his N Street home in Georgetown.

Diligent reporters may gradually piece together large elements of the wedding guest list from personal observation and hearsay. The list as such will never be published. Nor will newsmen be allowed to attend the reception.

A handful, accompanied by photographers, will have about 10 minutes at the outset to observe the receiving

White House Weddings

By PATRICIA KING
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — White House tradition has provided some of the ground rules for Luci Johnson's wedding, but not many.

Although Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and her daughter were avid readers of The Wedding Book, the one-of-a-kind history prepared by White House Curator James Ketchum, large helpings of Texas tradition will make the Johnson-Nugent nuptials on August 6 markedly different from the six presidential daughter weddings which preceded it.

For one thing, Luci will not marry Patrick Nugent in the White House but before the altar of the Catholic Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. Previous weddings were held in the mansion and, specifically, the East Room.

Luci's reception will be held in the East Room, keeping the tradition somewhat intact, but her 700 guests will also circulate through practically every other flower-bedecked room in the big house.

In contrast to the hoopla surrounding Luci's big moment, past White House weddings, with two big exceptions, were relatively quiet affairs.

So quiet that when President James Madison's daughter Maria married Samuel L. Gouverneur in 1820, the occasion was recorded for posterity in a Washington newspaper with one line: "The wedding was done in the New York style," whatever that was.

Monroe was the first president to give away a daughter but Lucy Washington, widowed sister of Dolley Madison, was the first person to be married in the White House. That was in 1812 and the bridegroom was Thomas Todd, an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

The Johnson-Nugent wedding may score a few firsts in other departments, but not in size. Oldsters are still talking about Feb. 17, 1906, when Teddy Roosevelt's daughter married Rep. Nicholas Longworth.

Teddy probably would have preferred a rugged ceremony in Sagamore Hill, his Oyster Bay, N. Y., home, attended only by close friends and the stuffed moose and deer which lined the walls.

Princess Alice, however, thought otherwise. And so the service was performed by the Episcopal Bishop of Washington before 1,000 guests, including representatives from many countries.

The gifts reflect the grandiose tastes of the time. The president of France gave Alice a $25,000 tapestry and two priceless Sevres vases. Cuba sent along a necklace of 63 matching pearls. The King of Italy presented a mosaic table.

"It was fun. It was a good party, a very good party," recalls the 81-year-old Mrs. Longworth in classic understatement.

All White House brides were said to be beautiful, but Elizabeth Tyler looked "exquisitely lovely" when she married William Waller in 1842.

"Lizzie has quite a grand wedding," the Wedding Book recounts, "although the intention was that it should be quiet and private."

With Luci trying to keep her wedding private and personal — in the world's seventh largest church — she must have sympathized with Lizzie's efforts to keep everything quiet.

President Ulysses Grant's daughter Ellen's marriage to Algernon Sartoris, an Englishman, was also full-blown, in keeping with the free-spending spirit of the Grant era.

The wedding in the spring of 1874 was a social event of international importance. Eight bridesmaids — Luci will have 12 — attended "the Daughter of Our Nation" whose white satin gown carried $4,000 worth of Brussels point lace.

The bridegroom, incidentally, raised a few eyebrows when he pranced up the aisle carrying a bouquet. But Wait Whitman saved the day by dedicating a poem to Ellen, "A Kiss to the Bride."

The wedding was a success but the marriage was a failure. Several years later Ellen came home to daddy with her three children.

Jesse Wilson, whose sister Eleanor was the last daughter of a president to be married, in 1914, looked as "fair as lilies in a Sevres vase" (not, presumably, one of the two given to Alice Roosevelt Longworth), when she took her vows six months earlier.

But thanks to the zealousness of the White House security force, Jesse was almost left standing at the altar. Francis Sayres, her husband-to-be, didn't have a ticket to the wedding and it took long minutes to explain that he was the bridegroom.

line. Later on they will be permitted to come in again to watch the cake-cutting for a moment or two. All the others will have to observe comings and goings from a vantage point on the south lawn of the White House.

Sometime late in the afternoon, Luci and Pat will dash upstairs to the White House living quarters and change into their traveling attire. Shortly afterward, Luci will toss her bridal bouquet to some lucky friend, the bride and groom will make the traditional run through a hail of rice, and they will be off on their brief honeymoon to a still secret place.

Alice Roosevelt, Nicholas Longworth and T. R., Alice's pop.

MARINE LT. Jerry P. Nugent Jr. catches up on the news near Da Nang, South Viet Nam, and reads all about his brother Patrick's wedding plans. Pat will marry Luci Johnson Aug. 6 in Washington but Jerry, who would have been best man, won't be able to attend. Jerry P. Nugent Sr. will act as proxy best man.

To Spread English

By BOB COOPER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — "I have a child, aged 4, I try to feed her Christian knowledge. It is hard to get in our country. I have been searching for picture story Bible books..."

The letter was one of hundreds sent to Mrs. J. Farra Van Meter of Lexington, who believes people all over the world want to improve their English and teach it to their children.

"We've traveled to many countries and wherever we've gone people are very eager about English," said Mrs. Van Meter, who has formed the International Book Project, Inc., to help them.

Her organization's goal, she said, is to have Americans send books and magazines printed in English to people in other countries who might be interested in them.

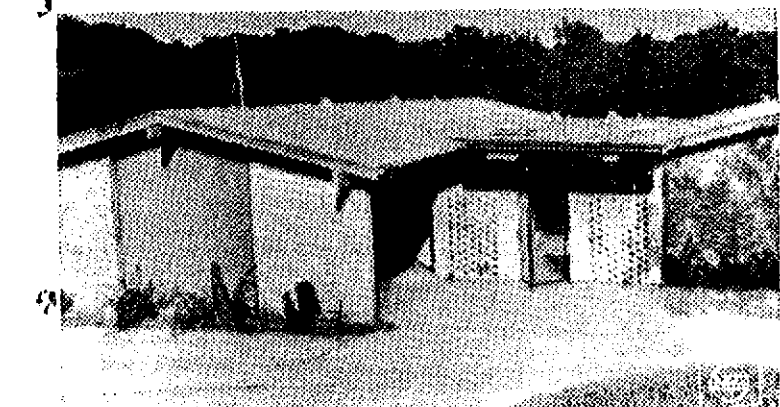

She has a fulltime and parttime assistant and has also formed a list of 15-year-olds, but 7 to 14 school girls or young men, a couple of Y.M.C.A. boys and hopes to get help from B.V. School of Girl Scouts.

At Lexington, Mrs. Van Meter and her assistant, Mary Ellen, are sending out letters to the age the public will learn of these gifts only by hearsay. They will not be photographed, nor shown to the press in any way.

It is a safe guess, however, that the "not very large" duplex in Austin will have something less than a bare look when Luci and Pat start their life there in a couple of months.

Declining Population

The population of Nome, Alaska, has been going in reverse since the gold mining stampede. From 20,000 in 1900, it has dropped to approximately 2,000 residents in 1960, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

WIN AT BRIDGE

North had quite a rebidding problem. He could jump to three spades but did not like that bid with only three-card support. Finally he decided that, if his partner could not act over two clubs, there would be no game for his side. When South found a second bid, North jumped right to the spade game.

West came up with the inspired opening lead of the eight of clubs. If South were looking at all the cards, he would have fished but South felt sure that the eight of clubs was a singleton. He clattered up with dummy's ace. East ruffed, cashed his ace of trumps and led a diamond to dummy's singleton ace.

South had lost two tricks and was faced with a sure club loser and was looking at two potential diamond losers. Theoretically he could ruff them out but in practice it would not work. He would run out of trumps in the process.

He could ruff one diamond without much trouble and set up a diamond discard on one of dummy's hearts if East held the ace of hearts. South planned to fall back on that play but looked around for an extra chance first.

He decided that East's plays had marked West with the last two trumps. In that case,

Disturbing Report for Catholics

NEW YORK (AP)—A leading Roman Catholic psychiatrist, who had sought evidence to support the rhythm method of birth control, today reported findings directly to the contrary—that it is a poor method.

"I must conclude that the use of rhythm is productive of serious psychological harm," said Dr. John R. Cavanagh, a professor in the Theology School of the Catholic University of America.

Dr. Cavanagh, who is a member of the birth control study commission named by Pope Paul VI, reports his findings from a survey in the August issue of Marriage magazine.

Based on replies to a questionnaire from 2,000 "successful users" of the rhythm method, Dr. Cavanagh concludes that its use deprives "a woman of the conjugal act during the time of her greatest desire and thus causes severe frustration in many couples."

Furthermore, he said, "disagreement over its use and quarrels over its failures cause marital discord" and "such disharmony with its attending symptoms may cause psychic damage to the offspring."

The survey was originated last fall by Dr. Cavanagh.

The rhythm method requires abstinence from sexual intercourse during a woman's fertile period. The Church, so far, has disapproved contraceptive means.

Military to Jam Roads Aug. 6-7

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas motorists have been warned by Arkansas National Guard officials to be on the lookout for heavy military traffic August 6-7 as units of the 39th Infantry Division move to Ft. Chaffee for summer camp.

Maj. Gen. Maupin Cummings of Fayetteville, commander of the 39th, said the division of 7,000 Arkansas and Louisiana men will move in 25 convoys using more than 1,300 vehicles ranging from Jeeps to huge wreckers and vans. Convoy units will include from 15 to 90 vehicles, officials said.

Routes with greatest concentration will be U. S. 167 from the Louisiana line to Little Rock; U. S. 71 from Louisiana to Jenny Lind; Arkansas 10 from Little Rock to near Greenwood; Interstate 40, U. S. 64, Arkansas 23 and Arkansas 22 from Little Rock to Ft. Chaffee.

Times of heaviest traffic will be the afternoon of August 6 and the morning of August 7, officials said.

Cummings advised motorists to avoid military routes whenever possible Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning.

Prize Probe on Asphalt Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Roads and Highways Committee of the state Legislative Council has invited the Highway Commission, key Highway Department employees and representatives of major asphalt companies to attend an investigation Tuesday into the sale of asphalt to the state.

The investigation is to be held at the Capitol building.

The committee designated Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett to question witnesses and determine if there are grounds for a case concerning charges of price fixing.

"All Risks" Insurance

More and more often, insurance policies on a home or its contents are using that reassuring phrase "all risks." Instead of naming the separate perils you are protected against, like "fire" or "theft" or "windstorm," the policy will wrap them all up in those two short words.

How much protection does that give you? Does it mean you are covered for absolutely everything that can possibly happen to your property?

No, it does not. For one thing, the policy itself may spell out exceptions. But even if it doesn't, the law will read certain exceptions into the coverage anyhow.

One such exception is a loss which you yourself cause, either on purpose or by extreme negligence. Take two cases:

1) a terrible-tempered farmer flogged his horse to death;

2) a home owner remained oblivious to the obvious while his dog soiled the carpet in more than 75 different places.

Both men claimed insurance under an "all risks" policy. But neither one collected. The courts reasoned that such insurance was never intended to reimburse a person for the consequences of his own flagrant misconduct.

Another exception is a loss caused by "inherent vice"—that is, the tendency of an article to go bad all by itself. Butter spoils, iron rusts, draperies fade, paint peels—not because of any outside peril but because of the product's own inherent nature. This, too, is the kind of a loss not within the usual scope of insurance protection.

Still, in spite of these exceptions, an "all risks" policy generally does give you a lot broader coverage than a traditional "named peril" policy. If there is a loss, it is not up to you to point to a clause that covers it. On the contrary, you collect—unless the insurance company can point to an express or implied exception that rules it out. Thus:

In another case of carpet damage, a woman accidentally matted the surface by the too vigorous application of a cleaning fluid. And a court granted her claim for insurance because it found no flagrant misconduct, no inherent vice, no relevant exceptions in the policy.

This was the kind of a loss, said the court, that an average person might reasonably have in mind when he buys "all risks" insurance.

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — Air Force Capt. William Ward (Mike) Smith, 32, of Searcy, has died of injuries suffered in a plane crash near the North Viet Nam border.

Excursion Boat Is Missing

FALMOUTH, England (AP)—A chartered British excursion boat with 25 to 30 persons aboard — including children — was missing today off the rugged Cornish coast.

The pilot of a Royal Air Force long-range plane reported seeing a white dinghy in the search area. Clothing was in the craft but there was no sign of life.

An extensive search was launched after the pleasure boat vanished during the night. There was no word of her 24 hours later.

The missing vessel—The 45-foot motor cruiser Darwin, with a crew of two—left Falmouth Sunday for a round trip to Fowey, 40 miles away. She was due back at Falmouth about 7 p.m. Sunday.

All passengers aboard were described as Britons. At least seven were children.

There were fears that the

Darwin might have been caught in the backlash of a gale that swept the coast during the night and been blown out to sea.

Donald Carter, secretary of the Fowey Lifeboat Station, said he saw the Darwin sail out to sea for the return trip.

Kick the Court But Spare the Constitution

Everett McK. Dirksen, the durable Republican senator from Illinois, is trying to put through congress a proposed constitutional amendment which would nullify the recent United States Supreme Court decision and permit voluntary prayer in the public schools — but he is getting a lot of opposition, and your editor will go along with the opposition.

Before you jump to a conclusion let us take time out to review the facts. In an atrocious decision the high court forbid prayer service in tax-supported schools because to hold such a service meant there was a link between church and state. The court's absurd reasoning conveniently overlooked the fact that from time immemorial the sessions of congress and most other public gatherings have been opened with a prayer service. But attendance at these public meetings is not compulsory, while attendance at school is, and this seems to have been the factor that controlled the decision.

The nation is shocked and angered by the Supreme Court's action. Therefore Senator Dirksen would capitalize on that anger by changing the Constitution.

He has a problem, all right, but the Dirksen answer is the wrong one.

The court is comprised of living men, here today and gone tomorrow. But the Constitution is a contract drawn up by some of the wisest men in the history of democracy. Does it make sense to turn the darn down just to get rid of a few rats?

Dirksen's opponents say his proposed constitutional amendment jeopardizes our Bill of Rights in the Constitution. That's a moot question, but when you start tinkering with the basic law of the land you are gambling that today's Americans are smarter in resisting tyranny and oppression than the founding fathers — and that I won't buy.

The record of today's Americans is plain enough. We have piled change upon change, sold out our rights for "federal aid," and multiplied the bureaus and powers of the central government until the average citizen today is confused and frightened.

He has only himself to blame, of course. Had he voted consistently for what is right and reasonable. Instead of permitting himself to be lured into the jungle by political plunderers, both he and his country would be happier today.

One of the oldest adages in American government points out that the Supreme Court follows the election returns. The people have elected Presidents who put on the high bench the very men we complain about today.

What we need now, therefore, is a new constitution? Hog-wash!

What we need now is a new breed of Americans with the guts to elect a President and Congress that will defend the Constitution we used to have.

Coin Display Thursday and Friday

KXAR announces today that a coin show will be held in the Hope Auto showroom Thursday and Friday, August 11 and 12. Jack Braunagel, well known coin authority, will bring coins for display having a total value of about $15,000.

The prize of the collection will be a 1795 silver dollar, the first coin authorized by Congress. There will be special displays of very scarce silver halves, a coin that has disappeared in the last 12 months. There will also be uncirculated dime sets and a large selection of pennies so collectors can fill dates needed. Another special feature will be $20 gold pieces, now very valuable and foreign coins that new collectors can buy for as little as 10c each.

Mr. Braunagel and KXAR invite local collectors bring their coins for exhibition or to trade or sell to the collectors. He is also interested in buying coins from local collectors.

The coin show will run from noon Thursday to 6 p.m. and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday. It will be in the air-conditioned showroom of Hope Auto and local

Lions Hear City's Recreation Story

Big Battle on Cambodia Border Near

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S. infantrymen and North Vietnamese clashed near the Cambodian border today in a series of running fire fights that could be building up to a major engagement.

U. S. military headquarters reported four sharp actions throughout the day in the rugged central plateau region 10 miles east of the Cambodian border and 235 miles north of Saigon.

Three of the clashes broke off after short fire fights but at last report the fourth was continuing toward nightfall. All of the actions, a U. S. spokesman said, involved company-size units of the 3rd Brigade task force of the U. S. 25th Infantry Division. The size of the enemy forces was not known.

Field reports earlier said several regiments of North Vietnamese regular army troops were known to be operating in the area, 20 to 30 miles south-west of Pleiku City.

The infantrymen killed 26 North Vietnamese in the mountain region Monday after a Communist attack. This raised enemy dead to 648 in three months of Operation Paul Revere against light American casualties, a spokesman reported.

Elsewhere in South Viet Nam, there was little ground action.

On the political scene, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, 35, promised South Viet Nam an elected government by November 1967 and said he would devote himself exclusively to his job as air force commander after that.

The premier made the pledge at the start of a campaign to spur interest in elections for a constitutional assembly on Sept. 11. The assembly will be given six months to write a constitution under which South Viet Nam can change over from military to civilian rule.

Ky had previously indicated he expected to remain in power until the middle of next year but avoided commitment to a precise date, citing the difficulties of establishing civilian government in a nation torn by war and political dissension.

In the air war Monday, a spokesman said U. S. pilots ran through a barrage of 17 surface-to-air missiles during raids on nine petroleum depots, trucks, barges and bridges in North Viet Nam. But the forays cost two Air Force F104 Starfighters, and both pilots were reported missing.

Cool Wave Pushes Into Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A rapidly moving cold front pushed through Arkansas today accompanied by rain showers and leaving in its wake cooler temperatures and the prospect of mild weather for at least a couple of days more.

Showers and thunder-showers covered most of the state dropping temperatures as the front swept through pushing hot, humid weather ahead of it. Heavy clouds also accompanied the front but skies were expected to clear with fair and mild weather forecast for Wednesday. Temperatures were expected to begin rising again on Thursday. Lows tonight are expected to range 62-66 north and 64-68 south. Low temperatures Monday night were generally in the low 70s.

Governor to Seek Peace in Omaha

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Nebraska Gov. Frank Morrison returns to Omaha today to discuss what action might be taken to return peace to the city's North Side where racial violence has erupted for three straight days.

Even as the governor planned the return, gasoline bombs hit half a dozen stores early today. No one was injured and no serious damage was done. Some merchants stood guard with shotguns through the night seeking to prevent the looting which occurred Sunday and Monday.

The fires, looting and vandalism which took place in the predominantly Negro neighborhood early Monday resulted in the arrests of 24 adults and seven juveniles. Mayor A. V. Sorensen, after visiting the area, said city officials would not "tolerate any more of this."

Morrison, who sent the National Guard into Omaha during racial violence last month, was to meet with Sorensen.

In Chicago, larger police patrols prevented another potential racial explosion in a Northwest Side neighborhood after 1,500 residents, mostly Puerto Ricans, poured into the streets.

Isolated disturbances began Monday night after two officers, attempting to quell a domestic quarrel in the area, shot and killed a 37-year-old man.

When residents swarmed into the streets, more than 200 policemen moved in and prevented the crowd from breaking up into smaller groups.

The crowd pelted policemen with rocks, smashed squad car windows and started a fire in one building with homemade bombs. However, most of the residents were off the streets by 11 p.m.

Police in Providence, R.I., were struck by stones and bottles Monday night as they broke up a disturbance involving 100 young Negroes after a civil rights rally.

Two policemen were injured, not seriously. They made several arrests to quell the disturbance. They wore helmets and carried plywood shields to ward off missiles.

The Rev. Virgil Wood of Boston had addressed a crowd of 1,000 Negroes earlier in Providence, urging them to force an end to de facto segregation in public schools. Wood called black power "one of the most beautiful phrases I've heard in a long time."

Primary Vote Today for Five States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Michigan Democrats decide today between former Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh for their Senate nominee, wary that Republicans may mix into their primary.

In other primaries: Kansas—Sen. James B. Pearson is battling for Republican renomination against Rep. Robert Ellsworth who gave up his House seat to make the race.

Idaho—Gov. Robert E. Smylie, asking an unprecedented fourth four-year term, is in what appears to be a close contest with Don Samuelson, a state legislator, for the Republican nomination.

Missouri—Three incumbent house members have opposition for renomination. They are Republican Durward G. Hall and Democrats Richard Ichord and Paul C. Jones.

Michigan has an open primary and Republicans, with no major contests in their own party, can vote in the Williams-Cavanagh race.

There is speculation that Cavanagh might pick up some votes from the GOP but Republican leaders counseled party members against getting into the Democratic primary.

The winner will meet Republican Sen. Robert P. Griffin, who has no primary opposition, in the fall. Griffin was appointed to the seat by Gov. George Romney after the death of Democratic Sen. Patrick V. McNamara.

Williams, 55, was installed as a favorite early in the campaign. He has the same broad labor union support that helped him occupy the governor's chair for 12 years that embraced the 1950s. He resigned as assistant secretary of state to seek the Senate nomination.

Would Give LBJ Power Over Strike

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate goes to work today on legislation which would create the machinery that leaves to President Johnson any decision to order a halt to the 26-day airlines strike.

The Johnson administration prefers a bill which would have Congress itself halt the walkout. Organized labor strongly opposes any back-to-work order—whether it originates on Capitol Hill or at the White House.

The debate was on even before the politically explosive strike measure reached the Senate floor.

"They passed the buck to the President of the United States," said Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., of the joint resolution which would authorize Johnson to force 35,000 striking machinists back to work on five major airlines.

Under its terms, Johnson could halt the strike for up to six months.

Morse said he will ask the Senate instead to have Congress write a strike-ending order.

Legislation handing Johnson new, discretionary powers to end the walkout cleared the Senate Labor Committee on a 10-6 vote Monday night, hours after the White House reported: "The President's advisers have informed him that he has taken all steps under existing law and utilized all the powers he has to bring about settlement of the strike."

A settlement worth an estimated $73 million over a three-year period was reached at White House negotiations Friday night, only to be spurned by the members of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists in balloting Sunday. "This is back in our laps," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, "and if there is anything we don't like in our laps, it's this kind of matter."

Texas Sniper Kills 13, and Is Shot Down

By GARTH JONES
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — An autopsy on the body of Charles Joseph Whitman, the campus sniper who killed 15 persons Monday, revealed a small brain tumor which could have caused intense headaches that may have indirectly contributed to his shooting rampage, Justice of the Peace Jerry Dellana said today.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. C. DeChenar.

Dellana said DeChenar is performing further tests to find out if the tumor is cancerous.

"He found a small brain tumor close to the brain stem, about the size of a pecan — this is the term he gave me," Dellana said.

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Charles Joseph Whitman, known as a quiet, thoughtful young man, killed his wife and mother to spare them embarrassment, he wrote, at what he was about to do — shoot everybody he could from the University of Texas Tower. He killed 13 more persons, counting an unborn baby, before police shot him to death.

In addition to the 16 dead, 31 persons were wounded in Whitman's day of carnage Monday.

Whitman, 25, an architectural engineering student at the university, held officers at bay for more than an hour and a half as he poured rapid, accurate fire from the observation section of the University Tower, tallest building in Texas' capital.

After it was all over, officers found notes beside the bodies of his wife and mother explaining something of what he intended — and that he wanted to save them from embarrassment.

The terror ended when two policemen and a university employee crept to a platform above the sniper's position and gunned him down at close range.

A Texas landmark, the library tower is a slender, four-sided shaft rising 307 feet above the center of the campus. Its observation section, above the 26th floor, commands a view of the entire city and the rolling hill beyond.

Whitman, who qualified as a sharpshooter in the Marine Corps, dropped some of his victims at distances as much as two blocks away.

Others fell on the broad campus mall surrounding the tower and lay untended in the 98-degree heat as Whitman kept rescuers at bay with his riddling fire. Police crouching behind trees and buildings answered with blistering rifle and shotgun volleys which left the tower pitted and marked. The gun battle lasted from 11:48 a.m. until 1:20 p.m.

Posing as a repairman, Whitman had hauled to his perch on a workman's three-wheeled cart a footlocker containing his arsenal: Two rifles, one equipped with a telescopic sight; a sawed-off shotgun which police said he had purchased that morning; a highpowered pistol; a semiautomatic pistol; a hunting knife. The locker also contained a supply of food and water, a plastic container of gasoline, and hundreds of rounds of ammunition.
